Operating Style

A person's behavior and thinking traits combine together in unique ways to impact the way he or she works with and communicates with others.

Communication

Kim Michael can be assertive and calmly authoritative when presenting ideas and navigating through opposition. His emphasis is on presenting the facts and making logical appeals. He is low key, deliberate, and calm in his communications. He is not inclined to engage in a great deal of small talk or unnecessary socializing. His primary focus is on tasks and sharing information as needed to procure desired results.

Decision Making

Kim Michael is not prone to rapid or spontaneous judgements. He takes time to assimilate and evaluate the facts and to review information pragmatically and objectively. He is very analytical, deliberate, and calculating in his decision making. He avoids being swayed by popular opinion or emotion. He trusts in his own assessments and conclusions, and he can be steadfast and persevering in implementation. He will want to research pertinent information before rendering opinions and solutions.

Ideal Environment

Kim Michael can take charge if he has had the time to gather facts and process the information. He is reliant on pre-set, structured rules and methods. He may feel uncomfortable in an unstructured or open-ended environment. He will be receptive to working within established guidelines which he can follow in his quest for correctness and accuracy. He will welcome privacy and limited distractions in his work environment.

Ideal Supervisor

Kim Michael likes to take ownership of his work area and job duties if he knows exactly what is expected of him. He benefits from clearly defined goals and timeframes as well as from having the time to analyze the best ways for achieving these. His ideal supervisor is comfortable outlining and providing Kim Michael with clear-cut parameters of authority and responsibility. He is motivated by work that rewards accuracy, details and facts. He values decisive management, consistent standards, and a production-oriented setting with concrete, measurable performance criteria.

Team Dynamics

Kim Michael prefers to focus his attention on tasks and technical challenges rather than personalities and people problems. He is respectful, patient, and positive in his social initiatives, but he does not actively pursue ongoing social involvement or a great deal of social activity. He prefers interacting with people on a practical, as needed basis. In areas of expertise and importance, he can assume an assertive posture in presenting his findings. He is most successful being persuasive when he can make logical appeals. In his efforts to gain consensus, he will stress facts and practical benefits. He can deal with opposing views if they are based upon facts and figures.

Descriptive Review

Kim Michael's traits do not exist in isolation of each other. Each trait impacts the others. Below is an integrated view of Kim Michael. As you read this section, consider how Kim Michael might perform as a Team: Executive Assistant.

Kim Michael works well in a position that rewards following established methods and procedures. He will need time to make certain his work is correct, and he has the capacity to work alone in completing his tasks and assignments. He is an aggressive, results-oriented person who tends to grow restless with indecision. He likes a challenging situation that allows him to take initiative. He has a natural pattern of reacting carefully and of maintaining a calm appearance while being able to solve problems quickly. He will take time to listen and reflect, and he will avoid impulsive actions.

He is a very adaptable person who will go out of his way to avoid social conflicts. He feels comfortable in a position that requires a cooperative effort. He is confident and decisive in accomplishing his goals, but will do so in a quiet, diplomatic style. He enjoys a work situation that is fairly well-structured and predictable. He can be highly efficient with job responsibilities that fall into familiar systems and routines. He is assertive and persistent and may rush forward into action while being careful to ensure he is correct. He is low-key and thoughtful in his approach to social influence and persuasion. He is not motivated by a strong need for social dominance or control.

Kim Michael prefers to engage socially with people he knows or when there is a purpose in connecting with others. He can work alone without interference or interactions with co-workers. He is often upbeat and positive in attitude. He has a very high level of emotional intensity when dealing with difficulty or problems. When frustrated, he responds with a great deal of energy.

He is a natural problem solver and likes a steady flow of new problems at work. He can quickly identify solutions to daily problems as well as work methodically through larger, more complex issues. He can provide logical and linear explanations that greatly aid in his communication and persuasion.

1: Job Fit Verification Interview

Review the three steps below before you conduct the interview.

Step One: Prepare for the Interview

1. Thoroughly review the Job Fit Report for Kim Michael.

2. Study the script and probing suggestions for Kim Michael; edit the questions and add your own if necessary.

3. Check your mindset—your goal is to be objective.

   - Stay neutral, curious, and *listen
   - Watch your body language — don't nod, agree, cross arms, or lean forward or back
   - It's not a conversation — other than asking questions, don't engage with him and share personal experiences

Step Two: Conduct the Interview

1. Welcome Kim Michael to the interview and make him comfortable:

   > Kim Michael, thank you for coming in today. The reason I wanted to meet with you is to get to know you better, and understand some of the things that are important to you. At the end of our discussion, we can both determine if it makes sense to continue our conversation.

2. Introduce the verification process and set expectations:

   > I'm sure you are curious about the Keller Personality Assessment (or KPA) you completed for us, and I am excited to share the results. The report we have received describes your unique combination of traits. Each trait has beneficial aspects, so remember that there is no good or bad combination of traits! My goal is to truly understand who you are and how you operate, and review and edit the report together to get a custom report that is all about you. You are going to hear some great things about yourself—be proud of who you are! Ready to get started?(Big Smile!)

3. Follow the instructions for the Job Considerations, Operating Style and Descriptive Review, beginning each section by reading the heading and the purpose of the section.

4. Take notes throughout the interview, capturing words and phrases Kim Michael uses as exactly as possible.

Step Three: Decision Point

Decide if Kim Michael is a good fit with the Team: Executive Assistant job.

1. Verify the report with Kim Michael, recording his responses in the Candidate Report Rating.

> On a scale of 1 to 10, how would you rate this report?
> Specifically, what was most accurate?
> What would you say was least accurate?
> Overall, do you have any comments or feedback on the report?

2. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class:

> Thanks so much for your time today! I've really enjoyed getting to know you. We are in the process of interviewing several other candidates, and will be in touch (provide a date if possible and follow up with a call or email to let Kim Michael know he did not get the job).
>
> (Or, refer to the job ranking) This role would not make the best use of your talents as you can see, (show Kim Michael his Job Match Rating) but this/these roles would be an excellent fit (show him his Job Match rating for the role/s). (If you are hiring for that role or can refer Kim Michael to someone who is) I would be happy to talk to you about that opportunity.
>
> Respond to possible questions:
> What's the next step?
> - I'll review the edits we made today in line with the Job Profile and determine if we have a match.
>
> What's the report for?
> - My goal today was to really get to know you as a person. Now I'll review the edits we made today in line with the Job Profile and determine if we have a match.
>
> Can I have a copy of my report?
> - I'm sorry, while I have shared with you everything generated by the report, we do not release the printed copy.

3. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match:

> You are a close match for this position, and I'd like to continue the interview process. I have some more questions I'd like to ask, and I am sure you will have some questions for me! Let's take a quick break and continue! (Offer a beverage and give Kim Michael a few minutes to relax.)

If 6 to 9: What would you change in the statement to make it a “10?”

If 1 to 5: Tell me how you are not that way.

Probing Suggestions

- Sometimes it makes sense to step back and assess a situation rather than jump in and take action. Tell me about some times where you waited before moving forward. How did this approach work for you and others?
- In dealing with others who've worked with you, think about your most effective team member or manager. What would he or she say about how you use your assertiveness to get the job done? What would this person say about situations when you might have used either more or less assertiveness and been more effective?

Dig Deeper

- "Tell me more” or “What’s another example?” or “Walk me through"
- “Give me an example of how that shows up in your job/at home/with your friends.”

Considerations

- He is more likely to be decisive without seeking counsel from others.
- He may at times appear to others to be set on doing things his way.

Intensity

Ask Kim Michael

On a scale of 1 to 10, how accurate would you say each sentence is?

Kim Michael has a very high level of emotional intensity at work which can spur him to take action. When frustrated or committed to a cause or direction, he responds with a great deal of energy.

If 10: What makes it a 10?

If 6 to 9: What would you change in the statement to make it a “10?”

If 1 to 5: Tell me how you are not that way.

Probing Suggestions

- All of us have times when we get frustrated with something at work. Some people express their frustration outwardly, and some keep it contained. Which one best describes how you typically react? Give me examples of a couple of situations where this has occurred.
- Think about a time when you were confident you were correct about an issue, but a decision was made that you didn't agree with. What did you do?

Dig Deeper

- "Tell me more” or “What’s another example?” or “Walk me through"
- “Give me an example of how that shows up in your job/at home/with your friends.”

Considerations

- Others may at times feel that he is not listening or that he will not compromise.
- Others may at times find him slow to compromise.

Ideal Environment

Ask Kim Michael

On a scale of 1 to 10, how would you rate the accuracy of the following statements?

Kim Michael can take charge if he has had the time to gather facts and process the information. He is reliant on pre-set, structured rules and methods. He may feel uncomfortable in an unstructured or open-ended environment. He will be receptive to working within established guidelines which he can follow in his quest for correctness and accuracy. He will welcome privacy and limited distractions in his work environment.

Ideal Supervisor

Ask Kim Michael

On a scale of 1 to 10, how would you rate the accuracy of the following statements?

Kim Michael likes to take ownership of his work area and job duties if he knows exactly what is expected of him. He benefits from clearly defined goals and timeframes as well as from having the time to analyze the best ways for achieving these. His ideal supervisor is comfortable outlining and providing Kim Michael with clear-cut parameters of authority and responsibility. He is motivated by work that rewards accuracy, details and facts. He values decisive management, consistent standards, and a production-oriented setting with concrete, measurable performance criteria.

Descriptive Review

Kim Michael's traits do not exist in isolation of each other; each trait impacts the other. Below is an integrated view of Kim Michael. Read this section to Kim Michael and ask him to rate the accuracy of it on a scale of 1 to 10.

Kim Michael works well in a position that rewards following established methods and procedures. He will need time to make certain his work is correct, and he has the capacity to work alone in completing his tasks and assignments. He is an aggressive, results-oriented person who tends to grow restless with indecision. He likes a challenging situation that allows him to take initiative. He has a natural pattern of reacting carefully and of maintaining a calm appearance while being able to solve problems quickly. He will take time to listen and reflect, and he will avoid impulsive actions.

He is a very adaptable person who will go out of his way to avoid social conflicts. He feels comfortable in a position that requires a cooperative effort. He is confident and decisive in accomplishing his goals, but will do so in a quiet, diplomatic style. He enjoys a work situation that is fairly well-structured and predictable. He can be highly efficient with job responsibilities that fall into familiar systems and routines. He is assertive and persistent and may rush forward into action while being careful to ensure he is correct. He is low-key and thoughtful in his approach to social influence and persuasion. He is not motivated by a strong need for social dominance or control.

Kim Michael prefers to engage socially with people he knows or when there is a purpose in connecting with others. He can work alone without interference or interactions with co-workers. He is often upbeat and positive in attitude. He has a very high level of emotional intensity when dealing with difficulty or problems. When frustrated, he responds with a great deal of energy.

He is a natural problem solver and likes a steady flow of new problems at work. He can quickly identify solutions to daily problems as well as work methodically through larger, more complex issues. He can provide logical and linear explanations that greatly aid in his communication and persuasion.

2: Thought Process Interview

Step One: Prepare for the Thought Process Interview

1. Review the Interview Tips from CV
    - With open-ended questions, the conversation can go in many directions—be prepared to ask great questions, listen, and analyze
2. Study the questions; make edits and add your own if necessary.
3. Check your mindset
    - Stay objective.
    - Be Thorough. Don't skip questions!

Step Two: Conduct the Interview

1. Segue from the Job Fit Verification:

> Thank you for your candor! I'd like to ask a few more questions. Before we get started, would you like to take a break? Can I get you some water/coffee?

2. Take notes throughout the interview, capturing words and phrases Kim Michael uses as exactly as possible.

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class.

> The role we are currently offering would not be the best match for your talents. I'd like to stay in touch and if I hear of anything that would be a good fit for you, I will certainly let you know. I would also be happy to hear from you if you know of anyone who you feel would be a good fit for our organization.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match.

> You are a close match for this position, and I'd like to continue the interview process. Would you be available for another interview tomorrow / later this week / early next week?

3: References

Step One: Prepare

1. Review the reference worksheets.
2. Check your mindset
   - Stay objective
   - Interpret what you hear and don't hear: People may be hesitant to speak negatively—but that doesn't mean they only have good things to say.

Step Two: Check the References

1. Get at least 3 third level references.
2. Ask each of the references you talk with for the name of another reference (not on the original list). This will take you two levels deep.

   > Who else do you know who has experience with Kim Michael and can give us a different perspective? Do you happen to have their phone number?

3. Use the same script to ask the second-level references for additional references to go three levels deep. If some of the references object to giving names:

   > Reference Objection: I don't know if I should share other names.
   > Interviewer: In our company we have a discipline of identifying other people who have worked with Kim Michael so we can get to know him better. As a hiring manager, I am held accountable to getting as much feedback as possible. Who do you recommend I talk to so I can get to know Kim Michael better?

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class.
   At this point in the relationship, show respect for the time and effort Kim Michael has made and end the process in person, on the phone, or with a handwritten note.

   > The role we are offering would not make the most of your incredible talents. I have really enjoyed getting to know you and would like your permission to keep your information on file, so if we do have a position matching your profile and talent in the future, we can bring you back in. Thank you so much for your time, and I look forward to any future opportunities we may be able to share.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match—conduct the defense

4: Life Story Interview

Step One: Prepare for the Life Story Interview

1. Gather several different colored markers and a flipchart.

2. Study the format

My Professional Biography

Dates

Event 1: My Education _____ _____ (date)

Event 2: _____ _____ (date)

Event 3: _____ _____ (date)

Event 4: _____ _____ (date)

3. Check your mindset.

   - Stay objective
   - Remember: It is fine if Kim Michael brings up personal information as he is interviewed, but you as the interviewer may not ASK about it.

Step Two: Conduct the Interview

1. Position the flip chart right so Kim Michael is seated right in front. Stand next to the flip chart, so you can see Kim Michael and write on the flip chart at the same time.

2. Using a black or blue marker, at the top of the flip chart, write “My Professional Biography,” and on the left side, write “Event 1: My Education.”

3. Draw a vertical line about three-fourths of the way across the page to divide right from left, and at the top of the right section of the page, write “Dates.”

Copyright © 2026 All Rights Reserved

4. Write the story of their professional journey.

> What we're going to do now is write your professional autobiography together, starting with the last time you were in school and moving forward. It's like your résumé, but we're going to go deeper than that. This is a chronological narrative of the defining events in your life. Inside each event, I'd like to know what you did, what happened, and what you learned.
> Let's start with the first event. When did you finish your education?
> (Write the answer under "Dates".)
> What happened?
> (Write the answer under "Event." You may switch colors for each line—it's easier to follow.)
>
> What were your "highs"?
> (Write the answers.)
>
> What disappointments did you have?
> (Write the answers.)
>
> Tell me about what you learned through this experience.
> (Write the answers.)
>
> Anything else you would like to add?
> If yes: (Add the information, then repeat the question until you get a no.)
> When no:
> Okay, when was the next major event in your life?
> (Write the answer next to "Event.")
> What was that?
> (Write the answer, for example, "My First Job" or "My Next Job.")

5. Follow the script and continue adding chapters, one at a time, picking up with the question "What happened?"—up to and including their current job or activity.

6. After you are finished, and just for fun, ask the candidate what title they would suggest for their professional biography.

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class

   At this point in the relationship, show respect for the time and effort Kim Michael has made and end the process in person, on the phone, or with a handwritten note.

   > The role we are offering would not make the most of your incredible talents. I have really enjoyed getting to know you and would like your permission to keep your information on file, so if we do have a position matching your profile and talent in the future, we can bring you back in. Thank you so much for your time, and I look forward to any future opportunities we may be able to share.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match—segue into the Motivational Interview.

   > This has been great! Thank you for sharing! I am really enjoying learning more about you. Let's take a quick break and continue. (Offer a beverage and give Kim Michael 5-10 minutes to relax.)

Copyright © 2026 All Rights Reserved

5: Motivational Interview

Step One: Prepare

1. Gather at least 4 different colored markers and a flipchart
2. Study the format

3. Have your Candidate Reference List ready
4. Check your mindset
   - Stay objective
   - Remember: It is fine if Kim Michael brings up personal information as he is interviewed, but you as the interviewer may not ASK about it.

Step Two: Conduct the Interview

1. Position the flip chart so Kim Michael is seated right in front. You stand next to the flip chart, so you can see Kim Michael and write on the flipchart at the same time.
2. Start by drawing a vertical line down the center and a horizontal line across the middle, resulting in four squares on the flip chart. Ask him what his two biggest priorities are besides Job and Money, then enter those priorities in the headings for squares 3 and 4.
3. Together, you and Kim Michael will fill in the details of motivation on the flip chart.

Copyright © 2026 All Rights Reserved

4. Capture their vision for the future

> I want you to pretend that you and I are sitting in this room five years from now, and I ask you how the past five years have been. You say, “Awesome!”
>
> Question 1
> What has to happen in the Job dimension of your life for you to be able to say “Awesome” five years from now?
> (Summarize his answer in that upper left square. If he has more than one answer, list each answer in bulleted format.)
> Question 2
> How do you envision that? What would it mean for that to happen?
> (For example: Kim Michael may have said he/she wants to make a lot of money; you must find out exactly what a lot of money looks like to Kim Michael. Using a different color marker, enter his answer in the same box.)
> Question 3
> Why would that achievement be important to you? How would that make you feel?
> (Using a different color marker, enter their answer in the same box.)
> Question 4
> What will having this do for you? What do you get? What impact would this have on you? Give me an example.
> (Using a different color marker, enter their answer in the same box.)

5. Repeat the above questions and process for each of the priorities in the other three squares (Money and the other two). You might also consider adding a fifth square, for which you ask him, “What else is important?” When done, step back and ask if there is anything he would like to add.

6. Review the chart with Kim Michael. Circle words that stand out. Ask the Kim Michael if these are the words that really motivate him.

7. Reflect with Kim Michael whether it’s possible for him to achieve all the things that are important to him through this role, or if their priorities are in conflict. Explore with him whether this job would get him closer to the things he values most.

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class.
   At this point in the relationship, show respect for the time and effort Kim Michael has made and end the process in person, on the phone, or with a handwritten note.

   > The role we are offering would not make the most of your incredible talents. I have really enjoyed getting to know you and would like your permission to keep your information on file, so if we do have a position matching your profile and talent in the future, we can bring you back in. Thank you so much for your time, and I look forward to any future opportunities we may be able to share.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match—check their references

   > Thank you so much for your time today! I've asked you a lot of questions and now I'd like to switch gears and share the opportunity we have to offer (share the company vision). Let me tell you the role I think you can play in this (speak to their motivations/goals. Be persuasive and energetic).
   >
   > I'd like to continue the process by checking your references—could you please fill out our reference check form, sign it, and send it back to me as soon as possible? Once I have checked your references, I'll be in touch.
   >
   > I'd also like you to meet with the team. This will give you all a chance to get to know each other. Please ask them any questions you have about the job.
   >
   > (If you are arranging lunch) _____ (name of social chair) will be in touch to make lunch plans.
   >
   > (If team is immediately available) They can meet with you now. Would like a cup of coffee/glass of water?

6: Group

Step One: Prepare for the Group Interview

1. Invite the team members the candidate will be working with.
2. Go over your expectations—what questions would you like them to ask?
3. Share the highlights and any concerns from your interviews.
4. Go over Kim Michael's KPA - they can help you verify the profile.
5. Let them know this is not a democracy.

> This is not a vote. It is your opportunity to give your feedback on how well you think Kim Michael will fit in with the team.

6. Check your mindset.
    - Make this the fun part!
      The Group Interview is not a serious grilling process, but rather an easygoing, casual, and friendly conversation between peers in a relaxed setting.

Step Two: Conduct the Group Interview

1. Designate the 'social chair'
    - You do not attend this interview!
    - Assign a person on your team who is friendly and sociable to spearhead this interview and be Kim Michael's reference point.
2. When the group returns from lunch/coffee, meet with them to gather their observations.
    - Do they think Kim Michael would be a good fit for the team? Yes No
    - Do they express any serious reservations? Yes No

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class.

   At this point in the relationship, show respect for the time and effort Kim Michael has made and end the process in person, on the phone, or with a handwritten note.

   > The role we are currently offering would not be the best match for your considerable talents. I have really enjoyed getting to know you and would like your permission to keep your information on file, so if we do have a position matching your profile and talent in the future, we can bring you back in. Thank you so much for your time, and I look forward to any future opportunities we may be able to share.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match—check their references

7: Defense

Step One: Prepare for Defense

1. Share copies of all of the important documents you have collected.

    - The job profile and résumé
    - Notes from the screening phone call
    - Kim Michael's KPA Job Fit Report and your notes from the Verification process, including Thought Process
    - Flip charts and notes from the Life Story and Motivational interviews
    - Notes from the Group interview and reference-check process

Step Two: Conduct the Defense

The committee reviews steps 1, 2, and 3 of the process and brainstorms several key questions to draw out the upside and downside of a potential hire.

Step One—Filter

1. Review the job profile and résumé.
    - Does Kim Michael have the knowledge, skills, track record, and culture to get the job done? Where is Kim Michael's match? Where is he a mismatch?
    - Is Kim Michael Potential Talent, Emerging Talent, or Proven Talent?

Step Two—Interviews

1. Job Fit: did the verification confirm Kim Michael's personality profile is a match?
2. Thought Process: does his thinking and culture make him a good fit for our organization? Will he stay?
3. Life Story: does Kim Michael's track record show a pattern of success?
4. Motivation: will this role get him closer to achieving what he most values?

Step Three—Perspective

1. Did Kim Michael fit in with the team?
2. Does his references—including the 3-deep references—confirm that he can do what he says he can?

Copyright © 2026 All Rights Reserved

Brainstorm—With the team, think of every conceivable answer to these questions.

1. Can Kim Michael be successful in this position? Why?

2. Imagine he fails in the first year. What might be the one thing that could have caused that, based on what you know about Kim Michael? Can it be avoided?

3. Imagine Kim Michael is succeeding, yet decides to leave. What was probably the one thing that drove his decision? Can it be avoided?

Step Three: Decision Point

1. STOP if Kim Michael is not a match, and exit with class.

   At this point in the relationship, show respect for the time and effort Kim Michael has made and end the process in person, on the phone, or with a handwritten note.

   > The role we are offering would not make the most of your incredible talents. I have really enjoyed getting to know you and would like your permission to keep your information on file, so if we do have a position matching your profile and talent in the future, we can bring you back in. Thank you so much for your time, and I look forward to any future opportunities we may be able to share.

2. MOVE FORWARD if Kim Michael is a match—you are ready to make an offer!

   > Could you come back to meet with me _____ (date and time)? We'll need about an hour. Great! Thank you! Really looking forward to it!

Copyright © 2026 All Rights Reserved

8: Expectations and Offer

Step One: Prepare for Expectations Conversation

1. Review the expectations conversation and the topics you will be covering.

    - How candid you will be with each other when communicating honestly. This is a key to knowing how to communicate bad news.
    - What Kim Michael's “hot buttons” are on the job—how you win or lose with him.
    - How to handle sensitive issues.
    - The job description—what Kim Michael will actually be doing.
    - The standards Kim Michael will have to meet—what level of quality and service is required.
    - How you will hold him accountable.

Step Two: Conduct the Expectations Conversation

1. As you ask each of the questions, note the answer given. As you share your expectations, record them as well.

2. You may enter your answers on the document prior to the meeting with Kim Michael. If you do that, be sure to note any differences in the information you provide during the meeting on the form.

3. Give the completed form to Kim Michael and have him initial and date each page before returning it to you.

Step Three: Decision Point

1. It is unlikely that you or Kim Michael will opt out of going into business together at this stage of the process, but do not rule it out as an option. If the expectations conversation is not mutually satisfactory, it is not too late to hit the eject button!

Offer

Step One: Prepare for the Offer

1. Customize the offer letter and Orientation to Kim Michael.

2. Check your Mindset!

    - This is the first step of your future employer-employee relationship; set the tone by making a positive impact.

Step Two: Conduct the Offer

1. Be enthusiastic and convey your excitement to Kim Michael!

    - How many candidates did Kim Michael beat out? Tell him!
    - Describe what accomplishments really stood out and the impact you know he will make on your company.
    - Tell Kim Michael how impressed his future colleagues are and how excited they are to be working together.

2. Use the offer letter (following pages) to thoroughly explain the pay and benefits, as well as assuming his buy-in with the orientation schedule.

3. Get whatever commitment you can. Most candidates want time to consider the offer, but go ahead and ask Kim Michael what they think of the offer and tune into any hesitations you sense—you may be able to provide him with more information to influence his decision.

Step Three: Decision Point

1. It is unlikely that you or Kim Michael will opt out of going into business together at this stage of the process, but do not rule it out as an option. If the offer is not mutually satisfactory, it is not too late to hit the eject button!

Offer Letter

Warning: Before using this letter, be sure you have your attorney review it for issues that are state specific.

(DATE)

(CANDIDATE NAME AND ADDRESS)

Dear (FIRST NAME),

We are pleased to extend to you an offer of employment at (COMPANY) as a (POSITION). The terms of employment, commencing on or before (START DATE), will be as follows:

Compensation:

You will receive a/an (SALARY TIME PERIOD) salary of $(AMOUNT) to be paid (PAY PERIOD), subject to any and all necessary withholding and deductions for income taxes, FICA, Social Security, and similar items.

Benefits:

(COMPANY) offers a variety of benefits, including (BENEFITS LIST). Please refer to benefits documentation for specific details of the plans. You will receive your benefits package (BENEFITS PACKET RECEIVED DATE). Benefits are effective (WHEN BENEFITS START).

(STATE – DELETE IF PARAGRAPH DOESN'T APPLY) is an "At Will" employment state. Accordingly, your employment with (COMPANY) will be "at will," and can be terminated by you or by (COMPANY) at any time, with or without cause or advance notice. By accepting this job offer, you agree that no contrary representation has been made to you.

In no event shall your employment be construed as a contractual relationship between (COMPANY) and you, or guaranteeing employment for any specific period of time. In the event the employee decides to terminate the employment relationship, the company would appreciate 2 weeks written notice.

If you are in agreement with the above-mentioned terms, please confirm your agreement as soon as possible by signing the enclosed copy of this letter and returning it to us at your earliest convenience.

Orientation Schedule

If you choose to accept the position, (COMPANY) will be conducting an Employee Welcome and Orientation on your first day of employment. During the orientation, you will be introduced to the company systems and you will complete your payroll, benefits, and federally required employment paperwork.

The Orientation and Enrollment meetings have been scheduled for the following dates and times:

- Employee Welcome
  8:15 a.m. on (START DATE) with (CONTACT)
- New Employee Orientation
  8:30 a.m. on (START DATE) with (CONTACT)
- Post-Offer Drug Test
  You will be sent to the appropriate off-site location

(COMPANY) is required by federal law to verify your eligibility to work in the United States. It is critical that you bring the items, listed below, to the orientation meeting. Without them, we will be unable to process a paycheck for you or enroll you, or your dependents, in our benefits plan.

- You will need form(s) of personal identification to complete your I-9 Form. Typically employees may bring their Social Security card and driver's license or your passport. Please see the attached list for acceptable documents.
- If you would like to take advantage of direct deposit, please bring a copy of a voided check for the banking account(s) involved.
- You will also need the birth dates and Social Security numbers of your family members if you plan to enroll them in the group health insurance or life insurance plans.

We are all excited at the prospect of your joining us here at (COMPANY), and believe that the confidence we have in your ability will be more than justified by your contributions in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

(PERSON MAKING OFFER)
